For stopping too much loud noise

When using this resource, you get the chance to yarn about how hearing loss affects you and your family.

When you have had a yarn, go back to the "Stopping loud noise" web page and you can learn about why listening is good for your kids. You can learn how good hearing can help them to listen better.

How do you keep kids away from too much loud noise?

What other places or activities
do you keep your kids away from because they are noisy?

After you have yarned about these cards and looked at the website, you could then:

- Write down what you want to tell people about what you have learned.
- If you are training early childhood workers you could get people to do a collaborative painting or drawing that shows what has been learned.
